Brailsford & Dunlavey Welcomes Cornyn and Fasano

Washington, D.C. – June 19, 2013 – Brailsford & Dunlavey (B&D) is pleased to welcome John Cornyn and Joyce Fasano, formerly of The Cornyn Fasano Group (CFG), as its newest vice presidents. John and Joyce have spent much of their careers dedicated to providing foodservice consulting services to higher education institutions, PK-12 schools, recreational and fine arts facilities, entertainment and assembly venues, and corporations, among many others. Their core values and portfolio correspond directly to B&D's purpose and services. With this new competency, B&D will greatly enhance the comprehensive facility planning and program management services it provides to clients nationwide.

“Food service touches every aspect of the ‘Quality of Life’ facilities to which we’ve dedicated our practice,” says Paul Brailsford, CEO of Brailsford & Dunlavey. “By finally bringing the highest level of foodservice expertise in house, we’re able to provide a comprehensive level of service to our clients as never before.”

John and Joyce began working together in 1977, and each has successfully completed more than 350 client assignments. CFG was a national firm located in Portland, Oregon, that provided best practice reviews, request for proposals (RFPs) for foodservice contractors, contract negotiations, operational and financial performance assessments and analyses, contract compliance audits, and operations and facilities planning. Each of them began working in foodservice at a young age, studied the field in college, and built an exceptional reputation in the industry through leadership roles in multiple organizations, such as the Foodservice Consultants Society International.

Fasano and Cornyn will step into executive leadership roles at B&D. Both John and Joyce are eager to embark on this next chapter of their careers and look forward to collaborating with B&D's experienced professionals.

“Joyce and I have lived by the phrase ‘to always be open to the possibilities.’ The opportunity to become part of a dynamic organization serving clients in an exemplary professional and ethical manner was simply too great to pass up. We are looking forward to enhancing the foodservice management and operations discipline at Brailsford & Dunlavey,” says John.
